Introduction

India is emerging as an important manufacturing destination in Asia due to several factors. It boasts a large, cost-effective labor force and a massive domestic market of over 1.4 billion people. Its strategic location facilitates access to both domestic and international markets.

Government initiatives like the Production-Linked Incentive Schemes aim to attract investment and simplify regulatory processes. In the realm of infrastructure, there has been massive spending led by the government and public sector undertakings.

Policymakers prioritize renewable energy and frontier industries like IoT and semiconductor manufacturing, besides aligning with global sustainability goals. Negotiations for trade agreements aim to bolster India's access to global markets and promote domestic exports.

In this edition of India Briefing Magazine, we explore India's evolving manufacturing landscape, spotlighting key initiatives and investor challenges. We offer insights into market entry strategies for foreign stakeholders and expansion avenues for domestic players seeking foreign capital and technology integration. Additionally, we delve into India's futuristic industries while emphasizing sustainability objectives.

Dezan Shira & Associates, with its extensive experience and local expertise across India, stands ready to assist enterprises in navigating the dynamic Indian market.
